CHASER JIGGERS

No, this unusual glass is not a sand timer or egg-cup. The most popular story of its origin comes from the Jack Daniel Distillery in Lynchburg, Tennessee. There, a traveling salesman wagered with Mr. Jack Daniel that he could make whiskey stand on water. Jack Daniel accepted the challenge, and offered a bottle of his prized Tennessee Whiskey if the salesman could prove his point. The salesman then displayed this unusual glass, filled the bottom chamber with water and the top with whiskey, and won the bet. According to the legend, Jack Daniel was so impressed that he bought the glass and named it the "Chaser Jigger".

CASED GLASS

These shots, double old fashioned and mixing glasses are made with a clear layer of glass with another layer of black glass applied on top. The Jack Daniel's® logos are then cut away from the black layer, revealing the clear glass below, creating a unique etched effect.
